Series Editors: W. James Jacob, Collaborative Brain Trust
Deane E. Neubauer, University of Hawai'i at Mānoa

Palgrave Macmillan is pleased to introduce one of its most successful book series—International and Development Education, with Professors W. James Jacob (Collaborative Brain Trust) and Deane E. Neubauer (University of Hawai'i at Mānoa) serving as series editors. This series focuses on the complementary areas of comparative, international, and development education. Books emphasize a number of topics including key international education issues and reforms, higher education management trends, quality assurance, strategic planning, examinations of national education systems, and development education initiatives. Local, national, regional, and global volumes (single authored and edited collections) constitute the breadth of the series and offer potential contributors a great deal of latitude based on interests and cutting-edge research. The series is supported by a strong network of international scholars and development professionals who serve on the International and Development Education Review Board and participate in the selection and review process for manuscript development. The series is co-sponsored by the Higher Education Special Interest Group of the Comparative and International Education Society and the East-West Center.
